Georgia Veterans Near All-Time High

Georgia's veteran population is now approaching the all-time high of 450,000, according to the annual report of the Department of Veterans Service which Director C. Arthur Cheatham, this week turned over to Acting Gov. M. E. Thompson. Those ex-servicemen and their dependents, the report states, received monetary benefits from the federal government last year totaling $248,718,180.

The sixty-seven field offices and 107 sub-offices of the department, Cheatham stated, handled nearly 115,000 claims during 1947 and made more than 681,000 contacts with veterans and their dependents. The total cost of this service to the state, exclusive of educational activities for veterans, was $541,015.

The report was a concise and interpretative analysis of the situation of the ex-GI in the state and even included an annotated compilation of Georgia laws made in his behalf. The servicemen's greatest needs, Cheatham observed, are: Congressional action to compensate some veterans for shoddy-built homes financed by GI loans and increased hospitalization facilities in Georgia.

Cheatham laid great stress on the value of the county veterans' committees which supervise the activities of the Veterans Service offices throughout the state. These, he declared, with the State Board of Veterans Service (which govern the department) were rendering the veterans of Georgia "a priceless aid." He concluded his report with the following observation:

"Statistics are a cold measure of human welfare and happiness. The Department of Veterans Service has provided this for thousands of Georgia veterans. It is with pride in the record of our activity—with deep satisfaction—that every member of our staff pledges himself anew to the discharge of the responsibility placed on him by the general assembly."

Mr. chance will open up his filling station every Tuesday at noon and stay open till 1 p. m., same day, and then close up and loaf. He will open up again for business on Wednesday at noon and stay open till around 3 p. m., and then close up and loaf.

The aforesaid filling station will open on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock and remain constantly open for two hours, and then will close up recess till 6 p. m., and then he will return back and open up for two hours, mebbe.

Mr. chance will not open up his place of business at all on Fridays and Saturdays, but will spend his time doing things around the house, such as eating, sleeping, drinking and listening to the radio. He will not open up on Mondays either. He will be engaged in matters around the house and lazing whenever he pleases. The only hitch is: he won't make any money while his plant is closed up and he can't expect any extra pay while doing nothing, but he thinks this government plan is worth trying out in private business. If this plan won't pan out Mr. chance is going to enter politics.

THE HIGH COST OF EXISTING—Mr. art square made a statement at the drug store last night that he had read a piece which was told by a high government official who calls himself a economist, and the said article claimed that the cost of living had gone up only 42 per cent since 1942. He should of said 242 per cent. The gentleman who wrote that statement must be boarding with an old aunt who has not gone up on his groceries for the past several years, or he would of known better than to say such a thing. A man can't eat statistics, so he said.

Mr. square stated that he bought good flour enduring 1942 for 67¢ per 25-lb. pke. He now pays 2.25¢ for the same thing. He got his eggs at 60¢ per dozen, whereas he now pays 80¢. His fatback meat pulled his leg for 6¢ per pound back yonder, but now they have stretched that same leg to 42¢ per lb.

stuff in the department stores is up about 300 per cent, and that explained why Mr. square goes around so ragged. He stated that some co-operations brag about paying so much taxes. What they do is collect taxes from the hard-pressed public and turn it in to Uncle Sam, etc. He further stated that he was offered a nice pair of 3.50¢ shoes for 17.50¢. That also explains why he latched onto a cold owner out of wet feet. Mr. chance says he now pays 15¢ per turn for coal that he bought on credit enduring 1942 for only 6¢. Thanks to John I. Lewis he is ready for a depression. It couldn't make things worse so far as he is concerned, so he says.

WEDDING BELLS HAVE RUNG AGAIN IN FLAT ROCK

Jerry mire budkin has taken unto himself another wife, and she is his third one. Their nuptials were pronounced by the local magister for $8 on last Friday night gone. He remained a widower nearly six weeks. He has a fairly good home to take care of, having painted it up and repaired it since he became a widower. Jerry mire had not been married to his present bride but 5 days. He met her while he was on the way to the welfare board to get his check. He is not able to work owner count of his back, but he says was sent for his back he would be o. k. and normal. He claims to have cut as much as a cord of wood a day enduring his prime. He is now 35, going on 36 and will soon be 37, so he says.

Jerry mire's new wife seems to be a good cook and house-keeper, as smoke is coming out of flu nearly all of the time, but where she gets stuff to cook is a worry to maddam roomer. She never has told Jerry mire where she was borned and raised, but he says it don't make no difference with him as long as she attends to his business.

Jerry mire knows all of the ancers to politics ansoforth. He says wallis will get nearly all of the labor vote as well as the commies, but he says Truman will beat all of the candy-dates who might choose to run for president. He ran for the legislature twice himself, but folks told he many lies on him, he lost out by a big majority in the first race. We wish Jerry mire many happy returns.

NEW DEVICES ARE AN AID TO DRIVERS

New Chevrolet Trucks Offer Advantages Hereof Unknown For Comfort

Detroit, Feb. 7.—Two mechanical devices which contribute importantly to driving ease are among features disclosed today on new 1948 Chevrolet trucks.

They are the steering column gearshift as standard equipment on all models equipped with three-speed transmission and a four-speed synchromesh transmission on heavy duty trucks. Both are firsts in the truck industry and highest improvements that assure greater comfort, safety and reliability.

Announcement of the new series by J. W. Burke, manager of the Chevrolet truck department, follows one of the most successful truck years in the company's history. Domestic truck sales in 1947 established a new Chevrolet peak while production of 335,344 units was close to the previous all-time record.

The new series is the first since the company's advance-design models pioneered in the low price market the wide, spacious cabs that have won universal acclaim. Blanketing the light, medium and heavy-duty truck categories, the line contains 107 models on eight different wheelbases.

Burke described the four-speed synchro-mesh transmission as the most significant truck development in years.

"In the passenger car and light truck led the three-speed synchromesh transmission has been synonymous with operating efficiency and smoothness," he said. "Because it offers similar advantages, the four-speed synchro-mesh will find an equally enthusiastic reception in the heavy duty truck market. To owners synchro-mesh promises reduced wear, less lost time and lower maintenance costs. To the driver the transmission means reduced driving strain, easier shifts and quicker acceleration in emergencies."

The steering column gearshift is standard on all models with payloads up to 2,100 pounds. Combined with a newly designed foot-operated parking brake, the innovation makes possible a cab floor clear of obstructions. This is a safety as well as a comfort factor.

Engines powering the 1948 Chevrolet trucks have been appreciably improved. Engine bearing life, to illustrate, has been more than doubled. Crankshafts are heavier and more rigid. Main bearings are new and precision-built. Still another aid to simplified servicing is a new valve stem oil seal.

While the new four-speed synchromesh transmission draws top billing, other parts of the chassis benefit by refinements. Particularly engineers have added increased safety margins so that performance will meet exacting standards even under the most adverse conditions.

Burdine Enters Field As Legion Candidate

Dr. W. E. Burdine, of Blue Ridge, state commander of the American Legion, has scratched all rumors that he will be a candidate for governor this year. Instead, he told newsmen, he probably will be a candidate for congress to replace Rep. John Wood.

Dr. Burdine forged into public view last year when he seized control of the Georgia Legion unexpectedly in the annual state convention. Recently he created a sensation in his district by successfully pitting a democratic slate against a coalition ticket in the city elections of his home town. He hopes to repeat this accomplishment in the county elections next year, although his territory—in the extreme northern section of Georgia—is traditionally Republican.

While the state commander has declared himself out of the gubernatorial contest, there is at least one prominent Legionaire who has aspirations for the office. He is William G. McRae, Atlanta attorney.

Both Dr. Burdine and McRae agree that whatever candidates do run will have to prove the efficacy of their veterans' program to receive the support of the majority of Georgia's ex-servicemen.

Say Oat Crops Need Nitrate of Soda

The condition of the oats in Bulloch county can be improved materially with some nitrate of soda. This was the conclusion drawn by E. D. Alexander, extension agronomist, and H. L. Southwell, animal husbandman of the Coastal Plain Experiment Station, after visiting some of the oat fields in the county last week.

Mr. Southwell stated that he was sure it would be wiser to soda this present stand of oats than to plant the late crop as many plan to do. This late crop planted now is always at condition of the oats would change immediately if soda was applied at the rate of from 100 to 200 pounds per acre now.

Mr. Alexander agreed with Mr. Southwell in his recommendation. Local farmers could not plant as many oats last fall as they wanted due to the weather conditions. Those they did plant seemed to have drowned during the heavy winter rains. The crop is materially needed to carry

State Approves Plan For Two Hospitals

Two new million-dollar hospitals have been approved for Georgia by the state health department. Part of the Hill-Burton Act program for which federal government will pay one-third of the bill, the two institutions are slated for Thomson and Gainesville, according to Dr. John E. Ransome, director of the state division of hospital services.

The Thomson unit, to be operated by the Upson County Hospital Authority will cost $1,086,000 and will provide 100 beds, he said. The Gainesville hospital for Hall county, will cost $1,440,998, he added. Plans for both have been forwarded to the U. S. Public Health Service for approval.

Under the terms of the Hill-Burton Act, the federal government will "match" a 1-to-3 basis, all local funds for hospital construction which has received the approval of Acting Gov. M. E. Thompson.

POTASH FOR AMERICAN FARMS

North American Deliveries of American Potash for Agriculture

The American Potash Industry, to keep American farms operating in high gear, is now producing and delivering for agriculture more than three times as much potash as it did in 1939. (See chart.) This record has been made in the face of great man-power, equipment, and shipping difficulties. While you still may not be able to get all of the potash you want to use, every effort is being made to meet the greatly increased demand for this essential plant food.

BACKWARD LOOK

TEN YEARS AGO

From Bulloch Times, Feb. 17, 1938

R. J. Kennedy, outstanding local business man, was elected Friday afternoon by the directors of the Bulloch County Bank as president to succeed S. W. Lewis, who died suddenly during the week.

Chairman Fred W. Hodges announced that Bulloch county is invited to take over a five-mile stretch of highway for beautification and maintenance, and the county commissioners and officers of the county to employ special assistance in the collection of delinquent taxes.

The statement was made that there are persons in arrears for taxes who are lending money on interest, and refusing to pay until their delinquency is forced to do so.

Social events: Honoring Miss Powell, who is to be married soon. Mrs. H. V. Franklin entertained around two hundred guests with a miscellaneous tea and shower at her home Wednesday afternoon.

Stothard Deal was hostess Saturday afternoon at an informal bridge party at which the best livestock year in the history of the county.

Lots of small hogs are being sold. J. V. Tillman, manager of the Bulloch Stockyard, reported, Mr. Tillman expressed the belief that this would be discontinued with the drop of grain prices. Farmers generally know the need for more meat and will do everything possible to help produce the needed pork and beef.

The livestock sales amounted to more than $5,000 in Statesboro in 1937, to less than any other enterprise by some $2,000,000. Potatoes, tobacco, cotton and other crops brought some $8,000,000.

Mr. Parker and Mr. Tillman were both quick to point out that it was only natural for livestock to be the major money crop in the county, since the soil, crops and even the people were adapted to livestock farming.

adequate machinery being made available to produce feed crops and very little available to harvest these crops, it is necessary for farmers to keep more hogs and cows to harvest these crops.

When the county and farming generally gets back to "peacetime" production livestock will be still more important, these livestock dealers believe.

The Bulloch county farmers that turned to livestock years ago indicated there was "smart" farmers. They will use this same capacity when the demand for peanuts for oil and cotton for fiber begins to level off again.

Mr. Smith is a member of the board of directors of the GFBF and has been actively engaged in assisting in developing a sound agricultural program that will give farm people parity of income with other groups.

In emphasizing the importance of membership in the Farm Bureau, Director Smith's suggestion was strongly endorsed by A. M. Norman, of Dorchester, who is the second vice-director. These farm leaders pointed to the fact that organized agriculture is directing its influence toward the accomplishment of objectives designed to contribute to the welfare of rural Georgia and not primarily those who are members of the Farm Bureau.

"The achievements of the Farm Bureau in the first district directors' report," have contributed to every segment of our economy, and the fact that the organization is supported by a minority of farm people of the district is sufficient proof that greater good could result if all those who have benefited would enroll in their respective community and county chapters, and join hands to make rural life more attractive."

Setting type was not all that was needed to be learned. Today spelling has been discussed as an unnecessary study, but in that day a lad must know how to spell words in order to know how to divide words. He must know the syllables, else he could not divide. Think you it is easy to learn that art? Then you are—many people, printers of skill—do not know the proper division of words.

Then Rev. Reynolds told us that the part of the profession consisted of learning the names of type sizes. The body type used in our office he told us was long primer; smaller type used for legal advertisements he told us was brevier. And thus the type was identified by a name. Today few printers know the size of type except by their numbers. What we knew as brevier is today known as 8 point; the long primer of that day is designated 10 points.

In type measurement 72 points are one inch. Thus the new system has brought the matter down to a definite understanding, and type must be exactly accurate to interchange with the system of measurements in vogue.

What of Gothic faces? Well, there was the smallest face, brilliant, which was approximately equivalent to 3 points of today (it has gone entirely out of vogue); there was diamond, pearl, agate, nonpareil and minion. Agate is still recognized as a measurement and is one-fourteenth of an inch (which is right small, if you ask us). Printers do not know the name of minion, but it corresponds with the size of body type used in most of the dailies of today, known as 7 point. The letters at which you are looking are 8 point, and in the days of old would have been called brevier.

And this brings up to the philosophy quoted at the beginning of this writing, "Live and learn; die and forget it all." About the time a man learns all he needs to know, modes and methods change and he's out of date.

Hogs and Cattle Leading Industry

With some $700,234.08 worth of hogs and cattle being sold in Statesboro in January, indications are livestock will again be the major source of income for Bulloch county farmers in 1948.

F. C. Parker Jr., manager of Parker's Stockyard, says sales are continuing heavy this month, with noticeable decrease in number of hogs or cows. Mr. Parker predicted 1948 would be the best livestock year in the history of the county.

Lots of small hogs are being sold. J. V. Tillman, manager of the Bulloch Stockyard, reported, Mr. Tillman expressed the belief that this would be discontinued with the drop of grain prices. Farmers generally know the need for more meat and will do everything possible to help produce the needed pork and beef.

The livestock sales amounted to more than $5,000 in Statesboro in 1937, to less than any other enterprise by some $2,000,000. Potatoes, tobacco, cotton and other crops brought some $8,000,000.

Mr. Parker and Mr. Tillman were both quick to point out that it was only natural for livestock to be the major money crop in the county, since the soil, crops and even the people were adapted to livestock farming.

adequate machinery being made available to produce feed crops and very little available to harvest these crops, it is necessary for farmers to keep more hogs and cows to harvest these crops.

When the county and farming generally gets back to "peacetime" production livestock will be still more important, these livestock dealers believe.

The Bulloch county farmers that turned to livestock years ago indicated there was "smart" farmers. They will use this same capacity when the demand for peanuts for oil and cotton for fiber begins to level off again.

Mr. Smith is a member of the board of directors of the GFBF and has been actively engaged in assisting in developing a sound agricultural program that will give farm people parity of income with other groups.

In emphasizing the importance of membership in the Farm Bureau, Director Smith's suggestion was strongly endorsed by A. M. Norman, of Dorchester, who is the second vice-director. These farm leaders pointed to the fact that organized agriculture is directing its influence toward the accomplishment of objectives designed to contribute to the welfare of rural Georgia and not primarily those who are members of the Farm Bureau.

"The achievements of the Farm Bureau in the first district directors' report," have contributed to every segment of our economy, and the fact that the organization is supported by a minority of farm people of the district is sufficient proof that greater good could result if all those who have benefited would enroll in their respective community and county chapters, and join hands to make rural life more attractive."

Setting type was not all that was needed to be learned. Today spelling has been discussed as an unnecessary study, but in that day a lad must know how to spell words in order to know how to divide words. He must know the syllables, else he could not divide. Think you it is easy to learn that art? Then you are—many people, printers of skill—do not know the proper division of words.

Then Rev. Reynolds told us that the part of the profession consisted of learning the names of type sizes. The body type used in our office he told us was long primer; smaller type used for legal advertisements he told us was brevier. And thus the type was identified by a name. Today few printers know the size of type except by their numbers. What we knew as brevier is today known as 8 point; the long primer of that day is designated 10 points.

In type measurement 72 points are one inch. Thus the new system has brought the matter down to a definite understanding, and type must be exactly accurate to interchange with the system of measurements in vogue.

What of Gothic faces? Well, there was the smallest face, brilliant, which was approximately equivalent to 3 points of today (it has gone entirely out of vogue); there was diamond, pearl, agate, nonpareil and minion. Agate is still recognized as a measurement and is one-fourteenth of an inch (which is right small, if you ask us). Printers do not know the name of minion, but it corresponds with the size of body type used in most of the dailies of today, known as 7 point. The letters at which you are looking are 8 point, and in the days of old would have been called brevier.

And this brings up to the philosophy quoted at the beginning of this writing, "Live and learn; die and forget it all." About the time a man learns all he needs to know, modes and methods change and he's out of date.

BROOKLET BANK INVITES BUSINESS

Opening of Doors Tuesday Morning Was The Occasion For General Rejoicing

On Tuesday morning the new Farmers & Merchants Bank, of Brooklet, opened its doors to begin business, armed with an impressive looking charter from the secretary of state and a certificate of approval from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Two representatives of the State Banking Department were on hand to aid in the formalities of the opening. Representatives were also on hand from banks in Savannah and Atlanta to extend good wishes. Four beautiful baskets of flowers were sent in by neighboring banks, two of them by banks in Statesboro.

As mentioned in last week's paper, the directors are Floyd A. Akins, T. E. Daves, W. O. Denmark, J. L. Minnick, H. M. Robertson Jr. and J. H. Wyatt, all enterprising young business men of Brooklet. T. E. Daves is president and H. M. Robertson Jr. is executive vice-president and cashier.

The bank occupies the same building which the previous bank occupied, which has undergone repairs, and been given a new coat of paint, which adds greatly to its appearance. Mr. Robertson will have as his assistant Mrs. Thelma S. Robertson (not related), who has had several years of banking experience.

The bank has fifty-five stockholders, and by way of celebrating the opening, the business men of Brooklet utilized a full page of advertising space in this issue of the Bulloch Times, and we cordially invite our readers to keep those enterprising people in mind when in need of the things they are offering for sale.

Dean Carroll and his wife, the former Miss Margaret Sweetney of Spartanburg, S. C., will come to Statesboro to make their home on July 1, President Henderson announced.
